The artists in this exhibition work through numerous processes to create provocative sculpture pushing the limits of the various techniques. As a result, unusual forms are produced maintaining a spontaneity that is often lost on traditional outdoor sculpture. The artworks are placed in the gallery context creating yet another layer of interaction. Most sculpture shown in contemporary galleries are often not suited to be placed outdoors so an interior exhibition that focuses on metal sculpture creates an unusual dichotomy between the sculpture and the space.

The exhibition presents a fresh look at metal sculpture that exhibits the freedom and rawness normally associated with sculpture based on non-traditional materials.
